

THREE YEARS IN JAIL TO KEEP CACHE SECRET MADE VAIN BY YEGGS

Woman Talks in Estate Contempt Case Just a Few Days Too Late.

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Daisy Tegmeyer, 52, the "forgotten woman" of the Cook county jail, broke a three and one-half year silence today to tell what she had done with the $30,000 estate of her late father-in-law.

"I sewed $25,000 in the lining of a heavy winter coat," she told Circuit Judge Cornelius J. Harrington in her 22nd attempt to be freed of contempt of court, for which she went to jail in July, 1933. "But a few days ago a friend told me my apartment had been robbed and I'm afraid the money is gone."

She asked for a chance to visit her home to investigate. "If the coat's there I'll turn over the money now," she said. "I'm really tired of jail."

Judge Harrington agreed to allow her to go to the apartment in the custody of a policeman. There she rummaged through closets and among wearing apparel. Finally she said, "It's gone."

The other $5,000, she said, she put into speculative gold mining stocks and lost it.

"I decided to be smart with the remaining $25,000," she asserted. "So I sewed it in the coat to keep it until we got out of the depression. The coat was in my apartment when I was taken to court in 1933. I didn't expect to be gone more than an hour, so I didn't even close the windows."

Mrs. Tegmeyer was sent to jail by Circuit Judge Hugo Friend, who ordered her held until she told what she had done with the estate of Henry Tegmeyer, father of her husband, Edward, who died after the money was entrusted to him. Relatives of her husband had demanded an accounting.

For more than three years she had steadily refused to disclose what she did with the money, saying on each occasion "It's nobody's business." She was still in custody tonight.

Little Town of Bethlehem Thrives in North Georgia

Fifty-three years ago, in December, a new town was born in Georgia and the suggested name of Bethlehem was adopted. It has a jail that has always been empty, it has had no crime of violence and its inhabitants are the most tolerant in the state. The picture shows a section of the skyline. That two-story building far back on the horizon indicated by the arrow is the inn, and the small, rough one-story shack in the foreground, indicated by the star, is the stable of Bethlehem.

NEGRO'S BODY FOUND, HANDCUFFED, BOUND

Creek Yields Corpse; Police Unable to Ascertain His Identity.

An unidentified negro, handcuffed and his feet bound tightly with wire, was discovered in Big creek in Roswell yesterday afternoon.

Police Chief S. F. Hembree, of Roswell, said the negro had been shot three times with a pistol.

Hembree and county police, who dragged the body from the water, said they had no report of any wounded negroes nor of any escapes from officers or jails.

Chief Hembree asserted the type of handcuff on the negro's arms was the same as most police departments use.

Coroner Paul Doneho, notified by Chief Hembree, said he probably will hold an inquest today. The negro's body was brought last night to an undertaking establishment in Atlanta.

Mrs. Roy Durham, wife of a textile worker, discovered the body lodged against a willow tree in the stream yesterday afternoon. Chief Hembree declared. She reported it to him and Captain John Oliver and other county policemen were called.

The Roswell police chief asserted the negro, who was about 25 years of age and six feet tall, was shot twice in the back and once in the forehead with a pistol. He said the water in the creek had not been high enough to float a man until last Friday. The negro's body apparently had been in the water for several days.

Captain Oliver reported that Elmer White, Fulton transfer guard, had had his handcuffs stolen near Roswell six months ago after an automobile accident, and that the numbers of the ones on the negro would be checked with a description of White's missing handcuffs.

HISTORIC RESIDENCE BURNS NEAR AUGUSTA

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Fire last night destroyed the old Hack home, a landmark in Richmond county for more than 100 years and once the rendezvous for society in this section of the state.

Built in the early 1820's by Governor Schley, the home was 12 miles from Augusta, at the site of the now abandoned Richmond factory, the first cotton mill erected in this section.

GEORGIA'S BETHLEHEM EXEMPLIFIES CHRIST

but regardless of contents, what they want is an envelope officially postmarked: "Bethlehem, Ga."

Founded in December 53 years ago, the first settlers of the town cast about for an appropriate name. Professor J. L. Moore, who still lives there and is an honored and respected member of the community, suggested "Bethlehem."

Reason for Name.

According to Postmaster Harris: Professor Moore liked the name of Bethlehem because of the beautiful thoughts that are stimulated by the original and immortal Bethlehem: December, Christmas, the birth of Christ, shepherds tending their flocks by night, the Star of Bethlehem, and the Three Wise Men.

The name was adopted unanimously. As to Professor Moore, let the Rev.

AGE-OLD BETHLEHEM TO BE ON AIR TODAY

JERUSALEM, Dec. 23.—(AP)—From across Bethlehem, where the birth of Jesus Christ will be celebrated in pageantry, a special Christmas program for the United States will be broadcast tomorrow.

The broadcast is to begin at 11:30 a. m. (Atlanta time) with an Anglican choir providing music and the British Consul General, Wadsworth reading a Christmas message.

Robert E. Lyle, pastor of the Methodist Church of Bethlehem, explained: "Professor Moore is the oldest male member of the church and has been active as a member for more than 50 years. He is an outstanding musician, having edited and published 40 different church and Sunday school song books."

"He is the author of 'Sweeping Through the Gates,' the favorite hymn of all leading Protestant churches. Through publication of his song books, Bethlehem has been the oldest state of the Union, to say nothing of Canada and Mexico."

The Methodist church and camp grounds have been the site of the 100 years old, having been established before the War Between the States.

The church, the site of the war and the days of Reconstruction, Bethlehem was the center of attraction, and many notable events occurred there.

Place of Refuge.

"The 16th Georgia Regiment of Confederates was formed and marched into service from the Bethlehem camp ground. The tents at the camp ground were used in the time of the war as a home for refugees. Many soldiers have been held in this place and many times has it resounded with the shouts of redeemed souls."

"Also has been the site for many gala occasions. The Sunday school celebration was held annually at the camp ground for many years. People came from far and near to these events."

"Bethlehem is located among the hills of north Georgia but the hills are not prominent enough to prevent them from being used for agriculture. It is almost wholly an agricultural community. Almost everyone living in Bethlehem owns some tract of land outside the limits of the town."

"At one time the community was prosperous and even today the inhabitants live well. There is a farm not far distant where many sheep are raised. In the early history of Bethlehem it was widely known for its grape industry. Many carloads of grapes were grown and shipped to the northern markets, while many were used locally."

"Mary and Joseph."

"The names of Mary and Joseph are common here but I cannot recall any man and wife being so named. A pastor of the Methodist church, who once lived here, Dr. J. L. Harrison had two children named Mary and Joseph."

"The Baptist church here has been established 35 years. The dedication sermon of the Baptist church was preached by Rev. John F. Eden, the pastor. The church has been served by such noted ministers as J. Frank Jackson, the noted Georgia evangelist; Rev. Stokes Walker, Rev. Harris Bridges and other noted preachers."

"Under the influence of Professor Moore, the town has always been musical. For many years there was a custom of singing the Christmas carols but the interest has lagged in late years. They enjoy singing 'The Little Town of Bethlehem.'"

"Eight miles away from here and on the same Methodist circuit is Nazareth, a thriving Methodist church. Then nine miles in another direction is Pentecost, a Methodist church, which live many people whose last name is Pentecost."

The Bethlehem Methodist church, under the direction of the pastor, is planning a special Christmas morning service to be held at 10 o'clock Christmas Day, and the sermon will be on 'Bethlehem, the Place Where Jesus Was Born.'

LOADS OF YULE MAIL ARRIVE FOR EDWARD

Windsor Adheres to Routine of Golf, Nipneps at Austrian Exile.

ENZESFELD, Austria, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Trucksloads of Christmas mail rolled up to the castle of the Baron Eugene de Rothschild tonight for Edward, Duke of Windsor.

Observers estimated the volume as about equal to the Christmas mail rush in an American city of 10,000 population.

The former King of England took this demonstration of affection in his stride, adhering to his routine of golf and nipneps. His ski was made ready for use by the great snowdrifts.

Villagers have made such strong attempts to get the stamps from Edward's Christmas cards that an announcement from the castle said all the envelopes would be destroyed after being opened.

The excitement of Edward's arrival died down somewhat among the village's 1,500 residents, and the run of life was back to normal.

Secretary Wallace, chairman of the group, simultaneously explained the plan for the business of insuring farm crops against the hazards of nature, starting with wheat in 1938, was adopted by President Roosevelt today by the committee he created to study the subject.

He said participation the first year—1938—will be limited to western wheat farmers.

Wallace added, however, that data was being developed for cotton and corn insurance, and that producers of vegetables and tobacco also were much interested.

In general, the recommendations to the President followed the combined crop insurance and "ever normal granary" plan advocated by the secretary. This would provide for payment of premiums and losses in wheat. Surplus yields in good years would be stored for use in poor seasons.

Wallace said the government could "well afford" to pay "administrative costs" and "overhead expenses" of the program.

In support of this, the committee offered treasury figures that $618,432,000 had been expended by various federal agencies in the last 10 years to aid farmers beset by drought, floods, hurricanes, hail, insect pests and other natural disasters.

WEST POINT, Ga., Dec. 23.—(AP)—A bale of cotton ginned in 1870 is stored in a warehouse at West Point. The late owner of the cotton, C. C. Jones, was awarded a medal at the St. Louis World Fair in 1894, for exhibiting the oldest bale at that time. It was ginned in Harris county by a horse-power gin and pressed on a wooden press.

R. T. Jones and J. E. Jones, part owners of the cotton that is in a perfect state of preservation, drove the mules that pulled the simple machinery that ginned the cotton.

MANY MERCY APPEALS HEARD BY TALMADGE IN CROWDED OFFICES

Score of Cases Acted Upon as Clemency Pleadings Throng Capitol.

Governor Talmadge, besieged by a crowd of intervenors for clemency seekers, acted on a score or more of cases here yesterday before halting the hearings shortly after noon to "go for a ride."

He ordered a 30-day respite for William Murray, Carnesville youth sentenced to die December 25 for the murder of his father-in-law, M. C. Daniel, last May 16.

A record of the case showed Murray contended Daniel had refused to allow him to live with his wife. His wife was among those who opposed commutation of the sentence today.

The Governor also granted a full pardon to G. D. Morgan, of Wayne county, convicted of manslaughter in Pierce county in November, 1935, for the death of Fred Warden.

Talmadge said evidence indicated to him Morgan acted in self-defense in killing Warden. Officials of Wayne and Pierce counties, he related, concurred in his view. The prison commission previously had declined to recommend clemency.

He took the petition of William Powell, of Early county, under advisement. Powell was convicted of killing Omar Howell in October, 1922. Sid Howell, sheriff of Early county and brother of the victim, opposed the application, while attorneys for Powell presented statements from jurymen for the case.

Powell would have been lynched in the courtroom had they not found him guilty.

The case of Peggy Monroe, Augusta woman convicted of killing Jack Cason, Atlanta chain clothing store manager in an Atlanta hotel in July, 1933, was postponed indefinitely for hearing by the Governor. The prison commission declined to recommend clemency in the case.

William K. Barrett, of Augusta, was attorney for the woman, serving a 19 to 20-year manslaughter sentence.

The case of Walter Mims Bragg, Savannah convicted of killing his wife on a bus, was postponed. Talmadge was one of those which had not been reached when the Governor ended the hearings for the day.

He said it was probable the case would come up a week from today.

"Guess I've Always Wanted to Be An Engineer, Son"

YOU will find, in countless American homes on Christmas morning, eloquent evidence of the place railroads and railroading hold in the hearts of folks throughout our land.

In the memory of oldsters still living, the railroads completed the bold and romantic enterprise of binding the nation together with bands of steel from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

And by their enterprise, the railroads continue to challenge the interest and stir the imagination of youngsters born and reared in an age of wonders.

Today, with undiminished vigor, the American railroads, in providing cheaper fares, faster freight and passenger schedules and marvelous records of safety, are writing new chapters into their romantic history.

Next time you take a trip, for business or pleasure, go by train.

Merry Christmas!

Arkansas Centennial Acclaimed as Success

Arkansas' celebration of its hundredth anniversary, which closed this week after a year of colorful pageantry, has been acclaimed a decided success, according to Albert E. Rogers, its director, who arrived in Atlanta yesterday to spend the Christmas holidays with his son, Clarence B. Rogers.

Rogers is well known in Atlanta, having lived here for two years, 1932 and 1933, when he was director of the Georgia bicentennial celebration in 1933.

"The Arkansas celebration was similar in many ways to the Georgia celebration," said Rogers yesterday. "In Georgia we had 4,000 events and, in Arkansas, we had 2,000."

"We were so close to Dallas we decided to forego an exposition, but profited by the fair they had there. It was learned that 52 per cent of the persons who visited the fair, motored through Arkansas on their way to or from Dallas."

Rogers' home is in West Newton, Mass., and his business is the promotion of public celebrations.

IKE RANSOM IS HELD UNDER BOND OF $2,000

Lottery Battle Victim Taken to Court on Ambulance Stretcher.

Taken into police headquarters on a stretcher, James ("Ike") Ransom, brother of Nick Ransom, slain in an outbreak of lottery gang warfare here, was arraigned yesterday afternoon before Recorder A. W. Callaway.

He was released under $2,000 bond on a charge of disorderly conduct, murder. The bond was handled by the Roy E. House Bonding Company, scene of the shooting in which Ike Ransom was wounded, and his brother and two other men were killed.

Ransom was taken to recorder's court from Georgia Baptist hospital, where he has been a patient since the shooting. He suffered several wounds of the legs.

A further hearing will be held in recorder's court January 6, at which time a hearing will also be held for Mrs. Nick Ransom, wife of the slain man. She is at liberty under $500 bond.

Following the hearing yesterday afternoon, Ransom was taken to his home on Rankin street in an ambulance. Swift Tyler, his attorney, revealed that in addition to leg wounds, Ransom is suffering from an abdominal wound.

Detectives M. B. Johnson and Richard Englebert, in charge of the investigation for city police, attended the brief hearing. They said they will leave Sunday for Knoxville, to exhumate the body of Spencer Mitchell, another victim of the gun play.

The detectives said they hoped exhumation of Mitchell's body would reveal bullet which would be helpful in investigation of the triple slaying. Examination of Nick Ransom's body Tuesday night disclosed four bullet wounds, passed completely through his body.

The case will be taken to the grand jury after Christmas, the solicitor's office has stated. The other victim of the shooting was V. H. Billingsley.

There are approximately 65,000 HOLC borrowers in the five states, their loans totaling more than $140,000,000.

SON CRUSHED TO DEATH AS FATHER LOOKS ON

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—(AP)—A retired fireman, who had parked his car near by, rushed to a steam shovel trailer today when he saw a screaming boy dragged off its deck into the tractor tread.

He collapsed when he discovered that the boy, crushed to death, was his own son, 10-year-old William Quinty.

Four other boys who had been riding with young Quinty on the trailer, fled.

New All-Time Record Is Set by Postoffice

A new all-time record was established at the Atlanta postoffice Tuesday, it was announced yesterday by Lon Livingston, postmaster.

A total of 3,215,022 envelopes were sent through the canceling machine during the day, setting another all-time record, the postmaster revealed. This included letters and Christmas cards, he stated. No figures on the number of parcels and packages were available yesterday.

The new record topples the figure set in 1930 when 1,213,368 cancellations were recorded, Livingston said.

Another record broken this season was the announcement last Monday by the postmaster that postal receipts through December 19 showed a gain of $73,798.04, or 26.27 per cent, over the same period last year.

JUSTICE M'REYNOLDS ARRIVES IN ATLANTA AS GUEST OF GILBERT

Supreme Court Member Will Be Widely Entertained
During Visit Here.

Justice James Clark McReynolds, of the United States supreme court, arrived in Atlanta yesterday to be a house guest for several days of Judge Price Gilbert, of the Georgia supreme court, and Mrs. Gilbert. Several entertainments have been arranged for Justice McReynolds during his stay here.

The visiting justice and Judge Gilbert were roommates at Vanderbilt University and have maintained their close friendship since that time. Justice McReynolds spent yesterday afternoon on a sightseeing tour of the Atlanta area with Judge and Mrs. Gilbert.

The Atlanta Lawyers' Club will hold a luncheon at 12:30 o'clock today at the clubrooms in the Citizens and Southern Bank building in honor of the supreme court justice and Judge Gilbert, who will retire from the bench January 1, after 20 years of continuous service.

All federal judges of the state and justice of the peace, as well as court and court of appeals and Fulton superior court have been invited to meet with the Atlanta Lawyers' Club in honoring the two jurists. Franker Hansell, president of the club, will preside at the luncheon.

Price Gilbert Jr., son of the state supreme court justice, will give a reception from 4 to 6 o'clock this afternoon at Brookhaven Country Club in honor of his father and his guest, who tonight will be entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Hollow Campbell.

ATTAINS DRIVE GOAL
TO WIPE OUT ITS DEBTPresident Richards Reveals
All of $150,000 Minimum Is Raised.Success in the campaign of Columbia Theological Seminary, at Decatur, to raise $150,000 to wipe out the balance of its building debt and to increase its endowment was announced yesterday by Dr. J. McDowell Richards, president of the institution.
The $150,000 was the minimum goal set for the campaign.
"Success of this campaign means that the permanence of Columbia Seminary as a part of the educational and religious life of the state is now assured," said Dr. Richards. "The institution will be enabled to expand its program and to steadily increase the services it is rendering to the south-eastern states."The campaign was initiated early last summer when an overture was received from the trustees of Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va., looking to the merging of the two institutions in Richmond.
"One interested Atlanta businessman," said Dr. Richards, "offered to give $75,000 to the seminary provided an additional $75,000 could be raised from other sources, and the campaign was undertaken under the leadership of Mayor Scott Candler, of Decatur, as chairman of the citizens' committee. The overture made by the Virginia authorities will now be definitely declined but, as only the minimum goal in the campaign has been reached, the seminary's needs have not been fully provided for."
A continuing campaign will be conducted not only in Atlanta but in all the southeastern states, looking to the securing of at least an additional $150,000 within the next five years.U. S. SEEKS REVIVAL OF NAZI-TRADE PLANUse of 'Blocked' Marks
Without Additional Duties
Is Sought.WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—
Means by which certain German-American trade can be carried on with the use of "blocked" marks without becoming subject to additional duties were outlined today by the Treasury Department.Blocked marks are German funds owned by Americans and other foreigners in bank deposits in Germany which can be used only for certain limited purposes permitted by the government and cannot be removed from the country.The common practice of using blocked marks in German-American trade was stopped by mutual consent when the treasury, on June 4, 1936, imposed "countervailing duties on German imports financed by marks bought at discount."These duties were designed to offset the advantages gained through the discount.
They were removed on August 14,
1936, when the German government enacted a law prohibiting the use of blocked marks in conflict with United States customs laws.F. D. R. JR. WILL SPEND HOLIDAY IN HOSPITALBOSTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Doctors decided today Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., son of the President, must remain in the hospital "for a few more days."
"Mr. Roosevelt is not going home for Christmas," the hospital announced.Recovering from throat and sinus infections, young Roosevelt received word of the change of plans from Dr.
George Loring Tobey Jr., his physician.
A few days ago, Dr. Tobey reported his patient had improved to the extent where he would "probably" leave the hospital Thursday.
However, the hospital reported tonight young Roosevelt had suffered no "setback," and that he continued to improve "steadily."U. S. MINT TO EXTRACT
GOLD DUST FROM AIRWASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)— Gold flies through the air with the greatest of ease, the Mint Bureau discovered today, and steps are being taken at the San Francisco mint to recapture it.
Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, mint director, said thousands of dollars in gold dust now are being blown out over San Francisco each year from ventilating ducts and chimneys in the mint.
She announced letting of a contract for electrical equipment to separate all dust from outgoing air. The dust then will be refined and the gold extracted.
The equipment will be supplied by Western Precipitation Company of Los Angeles and will cost $46,700.Girl, 10, Defies Blaze
To Save 'Trapped' DogNEW YORK, Dec. 23.—(AP)— Ten-year-old Mildred Parise became more fidgety every minute as she watched firemen fighting a fire today in the five-story tenement where she lived.
She watched nervously as a score of families fled from the building and firemen rushed in and out. Non-brought her friend and playmate, a little Pekingese.
She couldn't stand it any longer.
Unseen by firemen, she dashed in the house and right to the elevator shaft, where the fire had been burning.
Her screams brought rescuers who found she had fallen 20 feet down the shaft, escaping with only leg and arm scratches.
The Pekingese was found safe in the apartment where Mildred lived.Today

Glass Walkouts Continue and New Demands Made on G. M.

DETROIT, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The men who have been conducting a "sit-down" strike in the Kelsey-Hayes Company's two plants here voted tonight to accept the management's proposal to return to work and shortly afterward their fellow strikers concurred in the decision.

Approximately 2,000 members of the United Automobile Workers of America assembled in a hall and voted unanimously to return to work after their strike committee reported the men who had remained in the plants had just accepted the company's offer.

The management announced that work will be resumed Monday. Only a few hours earlier 600 employees of the Aluminum Company of America branch factory here accepted terms arranged by federal labor conciliators, ending a strike that had kept 1,800 workers idle 14 days.

Glass Strikers Continue. The two Kelsey-Hayes plants and the aluminum plant all manufacture parts for the automotive industry. Shortages of parts caused by the strikes and by others in factories manufacturing plate glass for automobiles resulted in curtailment of assembly operations in some plants. There were no prospects of a settlement in the near future of the glass strikes.

The motor manufacturers who have been affected thus were expected to be able to resume normal operations as soon as additional parts began to be received. The Ford Motor Company was the largest concern affected by the shortage.

George W. Kennedy, president of the Kelsey-Hayes Company, said the company's proposals met all of the union's demands. He had declined to negotiate with the U. A. W. as long as the workers remained in the plants.

The votes to terminate these three strikes called by the U. A. W. did not remove all of the clouds that have hovered over the motor industry, however.

New Demands. Homer Martin, international president of the U. A. W., prepared a second letter to General Motors Corporation officials reiterating demands for conferences on the labor situation. An earlier request resulted yesterday in a meeting between Martin and William S. Knudsen, executive vice president of General Motors, which Martin described as "entirely amicable."

Martin today said, "we are going to have collective bargaining in all of the auto industry," from the smallest manufacturer of parts to the "big three." General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

An estimated 600 to 1,000 "sit-down" strikers at the Fisher body plant at Kansas City voted today to leave the plant, and to continue by picketing the strike which halted the Chevrolet assembly line in the same building.

Still holding a threat to future automobile production was the widespread shutdown in the flat glass industry, although informed sources here said most companies had sufficient reserve supplies to operate for several weeks. Glen W. McCabe, of Columbus, president of the Federation of Flat Glass Workers, was expected in Detroit tonight to confer with Martin.

BRIDGES ATTACKED IN SAILORS' BULLETIN

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 23.—(AP)—A sharp attack upon the leadership of Harry Bridges, aggressive sponsor of the "solid front" by striking maritime unions, appeared tonight in the official bulletin of the coast sailors, whose representatives reached a tentative agreement with offshore shipowners.

"We will continue to expose this faction from now on in every way we know how—and we try to them," the bulletin said. "We will not succeed in sacrificing the interests of the sailors to the interests of a narrow political faction," the article, by Austen Hansen, said.

"And if Brother Bridges is sore because he had nothing to do with negotiating an agreement for the sailors, it's just too bad. And he has been warned publicly today to keep his hands and his nose out of the sailors' business."

The Sailors' Union belongs to the Maritime Federation, organized by the Bridges group, the policy of which is that none of the seven striking unions should settle with employers until all have reached agreements.

LABOR TROUBLE HEADS TOWARD WHITE HOUSE WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—A rising tide of labor trouble swept steadily toward the White House tonight.

Peace moves in the 55-day Pacific coast maritime strike were virtually at a standstill.

Secretary of Labor Perkins notified west coast maritime strikers and shipowners the public interest demands a settlement of their difficulties now. It's just too bad, he said. And he has glass production threatened to curtail the booming automobile industry's output.

Demand on Steel Works. John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, again raised a demand that the General Motors Corporation meet the United Automobile Workers to draw up a labor contract.

How long it would be before President Roosevelt personally attempted to quiet these troubles—many of them closely linked—was subject of much speculation in both labor and business quarters.

Mr. Roosevelt is known to have given the labor situation considerable attention since he returned from South America. Secretary Perkins has sent him digests of reports from Labor Department representatives in all areas where trouble has started, or is threatened.

T. G. Plant, spokesman for the shippers, attributed to Bridges the statement that there would be no Pacific coast settlement until striking Atlantic coast seamen won their demands.

Bridges said the only question raised in that regard was what consideration would be shown seamen who regularly sailed between the two coasts.

The unions, he added, were "suspicious of any attempt to create a 'hot cargo' situation . . . by bringing ships from the east coast manned by strike-breakers and demanding they be worked."

stick. Four of the men must have been killed instantly. I heard the voices of only two."

Firemen found Walbridge—said to have piloted the ship—still clutching the controls.

Cameras Attacked. C. E. Harman, manager of the Dallas Aviation School with headquarters just across the 300-yard wide lake, said he believed the ship's motors were shot.

News cameramen were attacked by a group of men wearing Braniff Airways overalls, or jumpers.

Preston Stroup, Associated Press employee, was knocked to the ground. His camera was damaged. The same group seized cameras from two other cameramen, destroyed their films and made threatening gestures.

Braniff and Department of Commerce officials started an immediate investigation.

SEARCHERS BATTLE WEATHER IN HUNT FOR LOST PLANE SPOKANE, Wash., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Two parties of north Idaho woodsmen battled snow, sleet and rain to the 6,000-foot summit of Cemetery Ridge today only to find that four feet of snow apparently had buried wreckage and two pilots of a crashed transport plane.

Continued failure met searchers in their intensive hunt for a Western Air Express plane and its seven occupants, lost since December 15 between Los Angeles and Salt Lake City.

First to reach the bleak spot near the summit of Cemetery Ridge where a Northwest Air Lines plane carrying Pilots Joseph Livermore and Arthur Haid crashed last Friday, was a group of rescuers from Kellogg, Idaho.

"We got through to the spot indicated on our map as the place where the plane crashed," he said. "We searched over the entire mountainside, but could find no trace of the plane. Visibility was so bad we could see scarcely 50 feet ahead of us."

Four feet of snow covered the mountainside, he said. Lieutenant Byron Cooper and Sergeant A. G. Hylent, spotted the wreckage from the air Monday morning.

CHINESE REBELLION IS GAINING STRENGTH

Chinese observers here for the unyielding attitude of the rebels.

The central executive committee of the Komingtang, dominant national party of China, indicated it did not expect the generalissimo's early return when it appointed other officials to fill government posts vacant since General Chiang and several lieutenants were made prisoners.

Gloom Deepens. Gloom in the capital deepened as the generalissimo's detention dragged on. All Christmas festivities were canceled. Funds which would have gone for year-end festivities are being contributed to charity.

American diplomatic mission authorities were increasingly anxious concerning the welfare of Americans in Lanchow, capital of Kansu province, and towns further west, as efforts to communicate with them continued fruitless. Lanchow, considered rebel territory, was reported to have joined the uprising.

The American consulate general at Hankow reported 30 Americans were in the Lanchow district and 14 more at Sining, 200 miles west.

The United States embassy received from Sianfu its first direct assurance of the safety of Americans there. This came from Herman Swenson, of Jersey City, N. J., member of the China Inland Mission, and George Fitch Jr., agent of the Texas Company.

Two American aviators were reported safe at Sianfu although prevented from leaving. They were Edward Wingard, of Erie, Pa., an employee of the Nanking government, and Royal Leonard, of Glendale, Cal., and Royal pilot of Marshal Chang.

WALLY AND KING MET CHRISTMAS EVE, 1931

baired middle-aged man" who accompanied Mrs. Simpson to France, no matter how hard one press service tried to leave that impression. It is with considerable pain that I admit the description fits. But, although I would have traded my right eye for the privilege of taking part in such a historic occasion, I remained in London that night and, to my chagrin, was unable to confirm her departure until the next day.

Wallis Simpson was not a "Cinderella." She has met her Prince Charming, but she has never had to sit by the fire and spin. At no stage in her life did she ever lack for the means and the background to make life very much worth while.

The yarn about that "two-story home" in Baltimore in which her mother rented rooms isn't exactly correct either. The reporters took off a story to make a story. It was a three-story house and a very elite one in its day. Taking in boarders indicated a lack of ready cash at the time but it caused very little loss in prestige for any family that had an established background. And Wallis' family had exactly that.

No Deathbed Statement. Incidentally, her father did not die before she was born, as so many papers have stated. He died about four months after her birth. I have seen in several newspapers since I returned from England a story that Wallis' mother, Mrs. Charles Gordon Allen, of Washington, told a faithful nurse on her deathbed: "It will be impossible for Wallis ever to have a child." A "deathbed statement" is a rather hard thing to disprove. But the fact is that neither Wallis herself nor any member of her family ever heard her mother make any such statement or know any justification for such a belief.

"Her favorite colors are blue, jade, amber, soft browns, flame and the pink of rose quartz and coral. As a matter of fact, Wallis Simpson's favorite color is a light shade of violet, almost matching her eyes. Her stationery is that color. Her informal letterheads have 'Wallis,' reproduced in her own hand writing at an angle in the upper left corner. Her more formal stationery also carried her address, 16 Cumberland terrace. What address it will carry after this, who can tell?"

King Easy Edward directly "Reaching King Edward directly is impossible," I quote from a New York afternoon newspaper. The statement is not correct. I asked the King whom I thought reached when I wanted to talk to him. He said: "I will be my own press relations."

He gave me the number of his private switch board, and thereafter when I wanted to inform him of some development I could reach him as easily as you could reach the office of your newspaper.

"Mrs. Simpson has acquired purely British tastes. Perhaps so. But she served popovers—real southern popovers—with roast pheasant in her home in London.

"Mrs. Simpson was never called 'Wally' back home." Bosh. Although she never liked it several of her closest friends used to refer to her as Wally and some times do still, unless they're speaking to her.

Incidentally, when she was young, she was called Bessie Wallis. This raises the interesting point that if the dice had fallen differently, England might have had another Queen Bess.

"It is tiring to travel under these conditions. We literally had to flee from our hotel this morning. I need rest. Plenty of opportunities. Like dozens of other statements, this one was attributed by a press service to Mrs. Simpson on her trip through France from Dieppe to Cannes.

Answers From Wallis. No doubt she was tired. No doubt she needed rest. But I say on direct information that Mrs. Simpson made absolutely no statement on that journey. Knowing her dislike to be quoted, I view with grave suspicion any of the sensational statements she supposedly made to the press since she went to France, except for the one released by Lord Brownlow in which she disclosed her willingness to give up the King if necessary.

Series of other inaccurate statements are being made from day to day. To refute a few of them, definitely and decisively, I sent this cablegram to Wallis today (Sunday, December 20).—Greatly appreciate cable immediately brief answers to following list. Personally sure most queries preposterous but need specific corroboration in order to kill. Give answers by numbers. One has bought home northern African. Two negotiating purchase old Merryman house in Green Spring Valley. Three is offering personal diary for sale. Four contracting sale personal by line story romance. Five, going Austria meet King Christmas. Six, was forced prior leaving England to return large quantity jewels claimed as crown property. Seven, divorce being pushed forward enabling marriage February 1. Eight, can you give idea how long remain at Cannes.

Her answers should put some of these rumors to rest and may establish others as well.

If Mrs. Simpson cables a reply, and I think she will, you'll know the answers tomorrow.

IMPEACHMENT OF GORE CONSIDERED BY RANKIN

United States having to reverse a decision of a local federal judge who had the audacity to declare the neutrality act unconstitutional," Rankin said.

"Petty Tyrants." "It's about time we found out how far these petty tyrants can go in the commission of what has been termed judicial repression," Rankin said.

The Mississippi Democrat, co-author with Senator George W. Norris, Independent, Nebraska, of the TVA act, asserted two days ago that he was ready "for a series of impeachments" if necessary to stop judicial injunctions against the power program.

In the intervening 48 hours he thought over the situation and decided to become more specific.

"Hell!" he exploded. "That's what the election was about. The people were thinking about TVA when they voted for Roosevelt."

Rankin was crystallizing his anger into a formal statement when he received the United Press representative. His desk was littered with "fan mail" resulting from his last threat of impeachment.

"DON'T CARE TO COMMENT." IS COMMENT OF GORE GAINESVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 23.—(AP)—United States District Judge John J. Gore, one-time law partner of Secretary of State Cordell Hull, refused to comment tonight on demands for his impeachment voiced by Representative John E. Rankin, Democrat, Mississippi.

"That's the first I've heard of the thing," he told the United Press representative. "But I don't care to comment."

Gore likewise remained silent at Knoxville yesterday when he signed the injunction. He was advised at that time that the Knoxville central labor union had approved a resolution demanding his impeachment.

MRS. FRANK ANDERSON CLEARED OF CHARGES

Wilson, of the thirteenth ward, who heard the case, dispensed with that formality.

Anderson, who was with his wife at the time of the arrest, charged the arresting officer, Patrolman Maddox, with being "uncivil," and stated after the hearing that "plenty more will be heard from this case."

He indicated he may take action against Patrolman Maddox before the public safety committee of city council.

The Andersons are prominent Decatur residents, and the parents of Alf Anderson, star halfback of the University of Georgia football team this season, and captain-elect of the coming year's baseball team.

Case Called "Outrageous." Mrs. Anderson denied the charge, and friends of the couple who appeared at the hearing were outspoken in calling the affair "outrageous." The hearing lasted about 25 minutes.

Anderson said he and his wife entered the theater shortly after 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and a little while later a woman with a small boy took seats in front of them. The woman got up and left in a few minutes.

It was then the assistant manager of the theater came to the Andersons and told them about the complaint. Patrolman Maddox, who was on duty near the old postoffice building, was called. Anderson said the officer "would not give him a chance to speak."

At this point in the testimony, Councilman Wilson stated the phases of the incident was not within his scope, but if any complaints against Maddox were to be made, they would have to be made to the public safety committee.

Felt Hand on Collar. Mrs. Anderson testified she was watching the show when she "felt a hand on her coat collar." Turning around, she continued, she saw Mrs. Anderson "trying to rip off the fur of the collar." The coat was thrown across the back of the seat.

Patrolman Maddox testified that when he went to the theater lobby, Mrs. Anderson and the assistant manager, a woman whose name was not learned, were there, and that Mrs. Anderson held a piece of fur in her hand.

Mrs. Anderson was booked on a charge of disorderly conduct, attempted larceny.

Hugh Burgess, counsel for Mrs. Anderson, questioned Mrs. Anderson about having trouble with her neighbors, and asked her: "Isn't it true several people have moved away from there because of you?" Mrs. Anderson denied this, however, stating she didn't even know the people Burgess referred to.

Booked Vaguely. The case was booked vaguely at police headquarters, the docket showing the case was made by Patrolman C. T. Maddox. Mrs. Anderson was taken to headquarters in a radio car and then released under $100 bond, signed by her husband.

Mrs. Anderson was with her 8-year-old son, William, at the time of the incident.

Anderson stated he objected to the way in which Patrolman Maddox grasped his wife by the arm and that the officer said, "Look out or you'll be locked up, too."

Testifying further, Mrs. Anderson said she "noticed" Mrs. Anderson did not have a coat, and offered her the coat if she needed it.

Governor Talmadge said he has known Mrs. Anderson since she was a girl.

GOMEZ IS IMPEACHED BY VOTE OF 22 TO 12

ment had promptly passed over Gomez' veto, provides funds for an educational system conducted by Batista's army. Gomez, in a statement accompanying his veto, said it had some admirable points, but that it was objectionable because of its military aspects.

In a defense plea before the senate last night, Senator Jose Manuel Gutierrez stressed lack of proof for the charges against Gomez and said that it is "up to the senate to decide whether Cuba is headed toward democracy or a military dictatorship."

Batista Behind Bru. Laredo Bru, who succeeds Gomez, is understood to have the support of Batista.

All members of the cabinet except Secretary of Defense Montalvo accompanied Gomez to his residence from the palace. They had resigned previously. Montalvo's resignation was not accepted and he is expected to be in the new government.

More than a thousand persons in the Prado outside Gomez's home cheered him when he arrived there by automobile. Gomez waved to them. All who could get in followed him into the house for an impromptu reception. Gomez's eyes filled with tears at the demonstration.

"These don't look like defeat but resembles a victory," one ex-cabinet member said.

During the trial, the senate was used by the defense that a verdict against the executive would throw Cuba into a military dictatorship.

Gutierrez, representing the president, told the senators they had a choice between saving the democratic government and a military dictatorship.

He charged the senate was "under pressure" and the everybody knows where the pressure is coming from. He declared "it has been said publicly that if the senate acquiesces in the present situation, it will be the palace and congress dismissed."

The President himself issued a lengthy answer to the impeachment charges stating that if there is anything that I can properly do but appeal to the conscience of each one who may be a worthy man to refute them."

He said: "In the depths of my soul I hope, not for the personal advantage of retaining the post to which the people elected me, but for the triumph of the principles of civility and the democracy I have tried to maintain, that the senate's plot shall not triumph."

was pronounced dead upon arrival at Grady hospital.

Wife Is Arrested. His wife, Mrs. Eva Hanson, 30, of 328 Windsor street, was arrested on a charge of suspicion of murder. The weapon was found a short time after the alleged murder near Pryor and Fair streets. It was turned over to Detectives Leo Nahlik and M. M. Copenhaver, assigned to investigate the case.

Four men and three women, witnesses to the stabbing, were questioned by police.

The witnesses questioned were Ted Long, 27, Lola Black and Raymond Smith, all of 328 Pryor street; Pete Mayfield and wife, of 220 Fair street; Charlie T. Powell, of 326 Pryor street, and Mrs. Ella Carter, of 217 Woodward avenue. Smith is operator of the beer parlor.

According to Radio Patrolman E. W. Johnson and W. F. Darrington, who arrived at the scene a short time after Mr. Hanson is alleged to have plunged the knife into her husband's heart, Hanson was seated in the beer parlor with another woman.

Mrs. Hanson objected and the couple went outside, arguing on the street. The "other woman," whose identity was not learned, fled, as the Hanson woman became more heated.

Woman Keeps Silence. Hanson slapped his wife in the face, witnesses said, and she then drew the knife. Following her arrest, she made no statement to police.

Hanson became involved with the law last August when J. C. Peck, 42, of 700 Yorkshire road, N. E., listed in the city directory as president of Clover Dale Dairies, Inc., was arrested in connection with the bombings of several stores and other alleged acts of terrorism.

Hanson, at a hearing in recorder's court, identified Peck as "the man named Jones" who allegedly promised him a good job. Hanson's wife also was arrested at that time, although he denied she was with him when any of the alleged bombings occurred.

Miss Middlebrooks, And Miss Graham Are Honored Guests

Mr. and Mrs. Clement A. Evans were hosts last evening at a buffet supper at their home on Brighton road in compliment to their debutante cousin, Miss Emma Middlebrooks and her guest, Miss Anne Boling Graham, of Rome. The guests numbered 30 close friends of the honor guests and the hosts were assisted in entertaining by Mr. and Mrs. Grover Middlebrooks, parents of the debutante, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cassels.

The yuletide motif was expressed in the attractive decoration of the rooms in which the guests assembled. In the living room and library gayly decorated Christmas trees graced the corners of the rooms and on the mantels were silver bowls holding calla lilies. A silver and white motif featured the dining room decorations, the table being covered with a white satin cloth, down the center of which was a wide silver band. In the center was a six-branched crystal candelabra in which gleamed white tapers. At either end of the table were handsome silver tureens holding white napkins and white roses arranged in pyramid shape to give the effect of miniature white Christmas trees. Tiny silver white Christmas trees, on which hung numerous silver ornaments, graced either end of the buffet and console.

Miss Middlebrooks makes her formal bow to society today at a luncheon at which her mother, Mrs. Grover Middlebrooks, will be hostess at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Youthful Atlanta Belles Pay Visit to Santa Claus

and Mrs. William Warren and of Mrs. Irene T. Williams, well-known Atlantans. Anne and Florence are two of Atlanta's youngsters who eagerly and impatiently await the arrival of old Santa Claus at their Wycliff road home tonight.

Miss Winship's Party Assembles College Set.

Miss Margaret Winship kept open house yesterday afternoon at her home on Peachtree way, the occasion assembling 300 members of the high school and college contingents of society. The young hostess was assisted in receiving by her mother, Mrs. Joseph Winship, and her sister, Miss Nell Winship.

The Christmas motif was expressed in the elaborate decorations throughout the house. In the dining room an effective combination of red and silver was featured, the lace-covered table being centered with a graceful Christmas tree strung with glistening red balls and red lights. The tree stood in a huge mirror which was outlined in silver holly. Silver candelabra holding crimson tapers completed the decorations of the table. Mrs. Charles Winship and Mrs. Harry Leasingham served tea and coffee from handsome silver services placed at either end of the table.

Punch was served in the sun parlor, where the decorative scheme featured blue and silver. The bowls were banded with silver and blue. A group of members of the Sigma Delta sorority to which the hostess belongs, served punch, the number including Misses Helen McDuffie, Catherine Lane, Frances Peace, Caroline McCleskey, Margaret Harmon, Evelyn Harrison and Joy O'Brien.

Assisting in serving were the younger sisters of the hostess, Misses Lillian and Lane Winship, and Miss Virginia Williams.

Dr. and Mrs. Smith Will Serve Eggnog From 93-Year-Old Bowl

By Sally Forth.

WHEN Dr. and Mrs. Lewis M. Smith give their eggnog party on Christmas Day at their home on Demorest drive, they will serve the delectable drink from an heirloom silver punch bowl. The treasured antique was a wedding present to Mrs. Smith's great-grandmother, the late Mrs. Edwin Marvin, who in 1834 was married in Troy, N. Y. The bowl is hand-carved in an exquisite grape design and was made in the days before alloy was combined with sterling silver.

Dr. and Mrs. Smith's party will be given as a complimentary gesture to their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mabey, who will come over today from Shadowlawn, their winter home in Camden, S. C., where they maintain a stable of fox-hunting and track-racing horses. One of their horses, Beautiful Girl, recently won a race on the famous track at Saratoga, where the sport-loving element of the United States foregoethers every August.

Sharing honors at the festive affair tomorrow will be Douglas Mabey, who is a senior at Yale University and is very popular among his colleagues. Mr. and Mrs. Mabey are socially prominent in Saratoga and move in exclusive circles.

A TRIO of attractive sisters,

Eleanor, Betty Jane and Shirley Punderson, of Cleveland, Ohio, will arrive on the 28th to visit their cousin, Martha de Gollan, one of the most popular debutantes of the season. They will sojourn in the south for only a short time, however, for their visit will be made to attend Martha's lovely debut party on the 30th of the month. The grand affair will be a reception at Brookhaven, which will assemble male members of society, as well as the feminine members, and you may be sure that the Punderson sisters will be the center of lots of admiring groups when they are introduced to Atlanta society.

The next day Shirley leaves for the west coast, for she is a student at the University of California, and she will have to resume her studies as soon as her Christmas holidays come to an end. The trio will be accompanied by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Punderson, who will be among prominent out-of-town guests attending Martha's debut party.

A POPULAR member of Winston-Salem's younger set, Nancy Powell, will arrive here on the 27th to visit pretty blond Lois Merriam. Punderson, who will be among prominent out-of-town guests attending Martha's debut party.

Resolutions Adopted By Woman's Club.

At the December meeting of the executive board of the Atlanta Woman's Club the following resolutions were recommended, and were adopted at the business meeting. Mrs. John R. Hornady, of Rome, a past president of the club, was elected honorary member. Dull and her daughter, Mrs. Henrietta Dull Broach, for conducting the recent cooking school were passed.

The program was turned over to Mrs. A. Mac D. Wilson, president for life, and Mrs. H. G. Hastings, first vice president of the Uncle Remus Association, who presented Professor Jack Lance, of Young Harris, who made a talk on "Folk Lore of the north Georgia Mountains."

The recent Christmas party was for club members and the banquet hall was darkened except for the gleam of the unshaded tapers. The carols, directed by Mrs. J. B. McNeely, co-chairman of music, were enjoyed most by the "Scene of the Nativity." Gifts which were placed at the foot of the brilliantly lighted Christmas tree were distributed to members.

Rice, second vice president; Mrs. Scott Allen, third vice president; Miss Lillian Pierce, recording secretary; Mrs. E. L. Rowe, assistant secretary; Mrs. Hugh Howell, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Arthur H. Hazard, treasurer; Mrs. Jack Savage, assistant treasurer, and Mrs. Willard R. Leach, auditor, and the officers and members of the Junior Atlanta Woman's Club, with Miss Frances Norman, president.

Christmas Dance at Pinebloom Assembles Members of Younger Set

Highlighting the gay social calendar for the members of the younger social contingent was the dance given last evening by Miss Dorothy Giddings and Glenville Giddings Jr., at their Pinebloom residence, Pinebloom. The occasion assembled a small group of the school set and the silver chandeliers of the school set.

Miss Giddings and her brother received their guests in the drawing room where the effective decorative note of blue was emphasized by the Christmas decorations of silver. They stood before the fireplace, over which was suspended a huge silver wreath with tiny blue lights twinkling amid the foliage. Garland of silver similar were draped in festoons from the wreath to the candelabra on the mantel beneath. Tall blue tapered candles in the candelabra and the silver chandeliers held pale blue lights.

A beautifully decorated Christmas tree graced the entrance hall where the windows were hung with cedar wreaths caught with red satin bows. The bay window in the dining room was also adorned with Christmas wreaths and outlined with many red candles which added a gay and festive note.

Graceful ropes of laurel were festooned against the pale green walls of the ballroom on the third floor where the young guests enjoyed dancing. Cedar wreaths, tied with crimson bows, adorned the windows in which many Christmas candles burned. Two snack bars, done entirely in silver, were arranged in the ballroom where punch, cakes, candies, salads and sandwiches were served. Forming an effective background for the silver bars were gay red and white striped candy walking sticks, suspended from silver rods.

Several favor dances were held, in one of which the guests were presented with white and silver horns filled with white confetti. Another was a ring dance in which the girls were presented with rosette rings. A prize was awarded the boy who collected the greatest number of rings, which were won by making attention to the young belles. Red and silver noise makers were distributed in another favor dance.

The young hosts were assisted in entertaining by their parents, Dr. and Mrs. Glenville Giddings, their grand-children, Mr. and Mrs. Preston Arkwright, Mr. and Mrs. Preston Arkwright Jr., Miss Giddings received their guests wearing a becoming gown of blue, colored net embroidered in silver bow knots. A cluster of gardenias adorned her shoulder.

Hambright-Williamson Wedding Plans Changed.

Owing to the recent bereavement in the family of Miss Betty Norris Hambright, her marriage to Woodford Dunlap Williamson will be solemnized quietly at home in the presence of the immediate families Saturday morning, December 26, instead of at All Saints church, as originally announced.

Contract Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Herewith is presented another portion of Mr. Culbertson's latest work on contract, "The Gold Book of Bidding and Play," which is being reproduced in this column in daily installments.

THE REVERSE.

Assume that the opener, with a suit of equal length, but with a near-minimum, had chosen entirely on the principle of rank. The bidding then would have gone:

North South
1 ♠ 2 ♠ Instead of 1 ♠ 1 ♠
3 ♠ 4 ♠

A progression of two rounds, contrary to both the principle of economy of bids and the added strength requirements for the higher rounds. This, although it does not actually bid the suits in reverse order of their rank, has the same effect of forcing partner to make his choice at the level of three-odd, and must therefore show at least as good a hand as the reverse would.

Summing up the influence of the strength of the hand on the choice of suits:

Avoid the necessity for a reverse at a higher level if the hand contains less than four (sometimes three and one-half) honor tricks. With about four honor tricks or three and one-half well-padded suits, the normal choice of opening bid (in accordance with principles of length and rank) should be followed even though this may necessitate a reverse in a higher round.

The bid, ng:

Pass Pass Pass Pass

West opened the spade queen, and declarer won. Only eight top tricks were in sight, but the heart suit offered a splendid chance for building to the ninth. At the second trick, therefore, declarer led a heart, but unfortunately he led the wrong heart! The heart layout with which he had to contend should have dictated the proper sequence of heart leads. He could see that if the suit broke 3-2, virtually any method of play would succeed. Three heart tricks, but that if one defender had four, it mattered a great deal how the play was handled. If East had four, nothing could be done about it, since his minimum of two honors and ranking spot cards would give dummy's nine. No insurance could be taken against this, there was a simple way to guard against a similar holding in the West hand.

Declarer's first heart lead should have been the ace, not a low card. When the 10 dropped from East's hand it would have been an elementary safety play then to have led toward dummy's king-4 and, if West played low, put up the nine spot. If East won this, it merely would prove that the suit was going to break. As it happens, the nine would have held the trick.

Obviously, if West should split his honors at the second heart lead, declarer would have had a tantamount to showing his cards to the declarer, dummy's king would win, and later a third lead be made toward the guard-nine spot. It would be difficult to devise a more elementary safety play than this.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: Kindly advise how the following should be bid:

Opener Responder
♠ A 7 6 4 3
♥ A 6
♦ K 5 3
♣ Q 10 5

Answer: Correct bidding is as follows:

Opener Responder
1 ♠ 2 ♠
2 ♠ 3 ♠

The opener's two-trump rebid is slightly shaded, but he must rebid, and has no better choice. Reopening with no-trump is based on much the same reasoning.

Girls' Cotillion Club Entertains At Brilliant Christmas Dance

A brilliant cotillion figure in which officers and members took part was the highlight of the colorful Christmas ball given last evening by members of the Girls' Cotillion Club at the Piedmont Driving Club. Members carried electrically lighted red candles in the march which presented an effective note as the lights in the ballroom were lowered.

Unusual and effective decorations featured the ballroom and loggia at the club. The entrance to the ballroom was formed to represent a huge red brick fireplace with a white mantel from which hung long red stockings. The guests entered through the fireplace to the ballroom which was brilliantly decorated carrying out the Christmas motif. The large columns were festooned with garlands of white and red and topped with white electrically lighted red candles. The laurel was arranged in festoon effect to each column and each was entwined with bright colored lights. At the far end of the ballroom a large white Christmas tree was placed and this became the center of the room. Symbols and decorations and formed an effective and artistic note with the background of palms, ferns and southern smilax combined with laurel.

The grand match was held at 11:30 o'clock after which a buffet supper was served. Officers of the club who led the march were Miss Mary Russell Irby, president with B. W. McKinney; Miss Elizabeth Hopkins, vice president with Carl Brittain, and Miss Anna Blake Morrison, secretary, with Dr. Marion Benson Jr.

Miss Irby was beautifully gowned in white net trimmed in silver and fashioned along becoming lines with tight bodice and long full skirt. Her flowers were deep purple orchids. Miss Hopkins' blond beauty was further enhanced by her model of green crepe fashioned along princess lines with a slight fullness in the back to form a slight train. Gold clips ornamented the square neck and complementing her ensemble was a shoulder bougie outside. Miss Morrison was lovely in a model of white silk trimmed in rhinestones and made long and full. Her flowers were orchids.

My Day By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.—I was met at the airport yesterday afternoon by my little daughter-in-law, Ruth, and as soon as I came in, Elliott's little girl, Chandler, and the baby, Elliott Jr., were brought in to my sitting room. For a five-month-old youngster he is the most responsible baby I have ever seen. He smiles broadly at everyone, and never cries when strangers approach him.

Chandler is also a very friendly youngster, particularly with the gentlemen. Before she had been in the White House an hour, she made herself entirely at home and was running about, even going into her grandfather's study twice when matters of importance were being discussed.

A rehearsal was going on for our stunt in the evening, so I had to dash downstairs and run through my part and come back to dress for a 7 o'clock dinner.

The President started off for the Gridiron Club dinner at just about the time we sat down for dinner at home, but as our actual party didn't start until 9 o'clock our stunts were not started until about 9:30, and we were not finished as soon as the gentlemen. This was the year for the newspaper women's clubs to provide the entertainment, and they did it with keen humor.

Women are said to be devoid of humor about themselves, but we all seem to live through these parties in a hilarious mood, even though they show up our little weaknesses and make fun of our foibles.

This morning seemed to be one constant succession of departing guests, and at 11 o'clock I had the first press conference which we have had a long time. I asked Miss Lavinia Engle, who is connected with the work of the Social Security Board, to come over and explain some of the things in the social security act which are not easily understood.

In my mail I have been receiving inquiries of every kind, some of them asking why federal bank employees were not included, others demanding to know why domestic servants and farm labor were not included under unemployment insurance, etc. I felt that a little writing up of this legislation would be helpful all around.

There were guests for luncheon, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Matson, of Toledo, who were such kind hosts to Mrs. Schneider and me when we were there last spring; Eric Gugler, who was the consultant architect on doing over the executive office, and Clarence Pickett, of the Friends' Service Committee.

After lunch, Mr. Gugler and I tried to decide on the right covering to be put on the new sofa and chairs in the red room. I confess that when I am choosing something for the White House and not for my own individual pleasure, I am really nervous and want all the help I can get.

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

The clever French say that it takes 40 years to make a woman charming . . . and the figure of a girl of 20 to make her irresistible!

Women used to be old at 28, but now they are young at 40 because they guard against the dowdy figure and settled posture that once composed the picture of middle age.

Your silhouette reveals your age, and the middle-age spread can appear at any time. To stay indefinitely young, keep your weight at normal and your curves where they belong. Your normal weight at 30 is your healthiest and most flattering weight, and you should not get heavier as you grow older. When fat settles and thickens the hips and waistline, years are added to the appearance. Three other places which pad your age are not to be overlooked—the chin, the nose of the neck and the soft, under-part of the upper arms. Variation from the normal lines of the figure, whether extreme thinness, overweight, or overweight in spots, detracts from youthfulness.

An erect posture adds youth to your figure. If you stand as tall as possible, you cannot have a double chin or a thick waistline. A bad posture can ruin even a good figure. Here is the test of good posture:

Stand facing a wall, toes and chest touching, with hands placed between the thighs and the wall. If the tip of your nose touches the wall, it isn't because your nose is too long, but because your head is poked forward. And the tummy should not even come close to touching.

Now, try the back-wall test: Standing, back to wall, heels, hips, shoulders and head all in a straight line. Flatten the small of the back against the wall, leaving just enough space for the insertion of the flattened edge of the mechanics of "getting around." In walking beautifully, the thighs lead the body, the legs are close together, and the movement is a graceful swing from the hips.

The strong, flexible muscles that lend beauty to movement also control the lines of the figure and protect you against the settled appearance of middle age. The woman who acquires a beautiful carriage, holds her weight at normal, and keeps active, carries youth through middle age.

Even your best friends can be superstitious.

Even your best friends are sometimes superstitious . . . so superstitious, in fact, that they will drag you out from under ladders and won't let you walk on the other side of a yard. Then they act as though they'd saved you from a great calamity.

Sometimes, it's hard to take. But if they are your best friends, there's just one thing to do. That is to grin and act as though you really thought you'd been saved from a great calamity.

Later you can take up the cudgels, and try to argue them out of it. If arguing has no effect—and it seldom does—then the best thing to do is to think up a nice bunch of counter-superstitions yourself. When your tail yanks you out from under a ladder, just look at her with a horrified expression, and say, "But it's good luck for me to go under. When you go around the outside of a ladder I always catch cold." Your friends will look at you with new admiration. And you'll be free to go your own way. That's certainly worth a tall story or two, isn't it?

FitzSimons Can Play, But Hays Is Definitely Out—Alex

All-star football teams in any language, including the Scandinavian and that of movie actors speaking what purports to be the southern drawl, named Robert John Herwig as All-American center for 1936.

He will arrive in our town at noon today from California, the University of, along with his teammates, the Golden Bears. He's this kind of a guy—

He never smiles—with just one exception—and that is when he has plastered some foe with a bone-rattling tackle. Then he smiles beautifully, sunnily and with great content.

He works his way through the university; prefers steak to tomato soup, doesn't like onions on his ice cream, sleeps in a bed, breathes air, doesn't care for shoes that hurt his feet, never uses salt in his coffee and eats his grapefruit with a spoon.

All these facts, and more, are supplied by his friends. But none of them conceals the fact he is quite a football player. They say he could have been a star in any position; that he can pass the football 70 yards and do other chores with it.

He was married to a very beautiful California co-ed on November 28. But the missus is staying home and will follow her husband through the papers, so to speak.

Following the game here he will rush right back to Berkeley as fast as trains will carry him. They say he is hurrying back for basketball, he being co-captain of the team. But his teammates say that Mrs. Robert John Herwig is the reason he is hurrying back to California.

At any rate, he is a major football attraction—one of the most unanimous All-American choices in years.

MISS ELEANOR HOLM.

So far as I know Mr. William Alexander and his department out at the Flats have overlooked just one bet in preparing the welcome for the California players.

He has appointed no sponsor for the California team.

When the Georgia Techs went to the coast in 1932 a young lady from Hollywood was brought up to Berkeley, accompanied by a press agent and a chaperon. She was the sponsor for the Georgia Techs.

Her name was Eleanor Holm and she was then the greatest backstroke swimmer in the world and had been drafted for the movies as one of the "Wampus Baby" stars.

This was during the time when any sports desk man on any sports desk was using every picture of Miss Holm that came across the desk. The sports desk men would gaze at pictures of Miss Holm and then call up and break dates they had for the evening. In fact, several present-day cases of palpitation of the heart, from which several newspapermen are suffering, may be traced to the Eleanor Holm influence of 1932 and that era.

I recall that when I had met Miss Holm that day in the big hotel lobby at Berkeley. I immediately wired the boys on the desk and the gnashing of teeth and shrieks of anguish could be heard all the way out there in Berkeley.

The next day Miss Holm went with the team back to Los Angeles. She was a great gal and had a lot of personality. It is just a coincidence, I suppose, that since that time I have been an Eleanor Holm fan and was in there pitching at Mr. Avery Brundage during the recent Olympic row.

The Tech team that of that year was very excited at meeting Miss Holm and they, too, dislike Mr. Brundage.

It is a little late, but maybe Mr. Alexander can dig up a movie star or a gal swimmer to sponsor for the Bears.

A LITTLE HOMESICKNESS.

There is a little homesickness out at the Flats. The boys are keen for the Saturday game. But they know that tonight is Christmas Eve. And that there is a lot of excitement about the old home place.

There would be fruit cake and candy and maybe a horn or so of eggnog and other Christmas comestibles. For them there will be Spartan fare, steak and potatoes and no dessert.

The two teams will meet at a dinner tonight at a large hotel on West Peachtree street. The one that's rather far out. They will be seated together with a Tech man between two California men. Or maybe it's the other way around.

And a genuine Santa Claus selected because he has the natural form of a Santa Claus. Will put in an appearance with presents for one and all.

All this is expected to wipe out the homesickness. But after it's done and they turn in for the night there will be quite a few of the boys thinking of home and the old fireside.

The Tech seniors are the ones lacking in luck. The juniors and sophomores on the team will be in Berkeley next Christmas, too excited to be homesick.

THE FOOTBALL GAME.

The football game should be worth seeing. Those Techs at last have got back into something resembling condition after an epidemic of the spavins, hives and a case or so of busted tendons.

This may be quite a football game all the way. The Californians are coming to town rated as a powerhouse. In fact, it is planned that if more current is needed to illuminate Christmas tree decorations, the power company may hitch a line to the California team.

If they do have a lot of sustained power and drive they will break down the Tech attack about midway of the third quarter.

Tech's best hope is to get an early start with some passing and some lateralizing.

But those Techs are curious. They usually drop the games they are supposed to win—and win the games they are supposed to lose.

Unless the California defense is too much for them, the Jackets will show a very versatile attack, including some new plays.

It's up to the line. The line must keep back the California linemen to give the offense a chance to get going.

THE CAREFUL MR. MANN.

Mr. Earl Mann, president of those Atlanta Crackers, went hunting yesterday.

"I did not fire a gun."

"He am a very bad shot," he said, "and might shoot Santa Claus."

So, Mr. Mann sat around and waited for the meat hunters to kill the birds. He eats them. This proves he belongs to that little group of intelligent hunters who never fire a gun.

MAROON BAND.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Paul Parker, director of athletics at Mississippi State University, announced here today the university band would accompany the football team here for the Orange Bowl game with the Duke University team on New Year's Day. Parker, who is arranging for the game, said he was arranging to bring 65 musicians. They will play between the halves.

LOS ANGELES OPEN.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The winner of the $8,000 Los Angeles open golf championship in January will receive $2,500. Tournament Chairman Bill Steritz, announcing the prize awards today, said cash prizes would go to the first 15 low finishers "to make competition keener and also enable the contestants to earn more for their efforts." First prize will be $2,500.

FIVE NEW STARS RISE TO HEIGHT IN RECORD YEAR

DiMaggio, Feller Top
Baseball Group; Morris Leads Track.

By Alan Gould.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—Five outstanding newcomers to this year's championship or record-smashing heights:

Baseball—Joe DiMaggio, freshman outfield star of the New York Yankees; and Bob Feller, American league strikeout king in his first year with Cleveland.

Polio—Stewart Iglehart, now rated with Tommy Hitchcock at 10-goal peak.

Track and Field—Glen Morris, world champion in the deaththrust in his first year at all-round competition.

Golf—Pam Barton, British girl who lifted the American women's crown, after capturing the British title for the first time.

KELLEY'S KICK.

They are still arguing about Larry Kelley's famous "soccer kick" against Navy. Motion pictures of the year's No. 1 break play, we were told in Washington, indicate it wasn't accidental and that the Yale captain drew his foot back in kicking stance. We will probably have the answer to this about the same time it's finally determined if Sam Rice actually made the disputed catch of Earl Smith's line drive as he tumbled into the bleachers during the Washington-Pittsburgh World Series in 1925.

Famous Christmas Greetings You Won't Hear Anything About: Eleanor Holm Jarrett to Avery Brundage, Joe Louis to Max Schmeling, Ed Witzel to Don Geyer, Hank Anderson to Dr. Frank Graham, and Jack McLean to the guy who invented the stymie.

Airmail Note: Sammy Abugh, of Texas Christian, and Buzz Buvid, of Marquette, will fill the Cotton Bowl atmosphere with football on New Year's Day. Together Buvid and Buvid completed nearly 200 passes for gains of 2,000 yards this season.

WADE'S RECORD.

Wallace Wade, Duke's able coach and our nomination for a "dark horse" entry in the next Vanderbilt cup road race, rates Fritz Pollard Sr., Brown's one-time All-American, and Johnny Mack Brown, the Alabama boy who turned movie star, as the best ball-carriers in a broken field he ever saw until Ace Parker came along. Wade's record of four Rose Bowl appearances—first as a player with Brown's 1916 team and three later as Alabama's head coach—will be tied by Jack Sutherland, Pitt coach, this January 1. But Sutherland will be seeking his first victory, whereas Wade lost only when he was a combatant in the line. Barbara, training site of the coast champions, teams won two, tied one. His Alabama Southwest Prosperity Note: Tulsa had its best baseball attendance in a decade, exceeding 100,000; drew its biggest grillion crowd in three years, 10,000; and is now paying off on bigger hockey "gates." Feedback tip from our Louisville scouts: Reap reward to win the 1937 Kentucky Derby.

Memo from the Sports Trailer: Major baseball leagues now own, control and working agreements with 176 out of 186 league clubs.

Tilden Rates Budge Next To Cramm

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—(AP)—William Tilden II, his long head popping out of a blue blanket, made plans today for his seventh year as a tennis professional.

He has a new cast of characters, a new set of detective magazines, a cough like the bark of a big brown dog, and limitless confidence in the durability of his knees and the future of professional tennis.

You know, professional tennis has progressed to the point where they introduce me as Mr. Tilden now," he beamed. "They use to call me plain Bill."

Most interesting newcomer in the Tilden troupe is Hyattor Sato, a sports writer from Tokyo.

If It's Bottles, Heave Full Ones, Says Ump Ormsby

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Emmett "Red" Ormsby, American league umpire, has delivered a new year's message to bottle-throwing baseball fans. "If they must throw bottles," said the grinning redhead, "em heave milk bottles—full of milk."

Ormsby is the papa of 12 children, four boys and eight girls. The youngest is only a few weeks old.

Guernsey Defends Public Net Crown

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Frank Guernsey, of Orlando, will defend his Florida state public courts tennis title in the 21st annual tournament opening here Saturday.

Entry lists close today and the Jacksonville recreation department, which sponsors the event, expects many of the state's ablest players to enter.

Guernsey holds the men's singles and junior singles crowns and shares the men's doubles title with Arthur Hendrix, of Lakeland.

Birthday Party Surprises Mack

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, was given a surprise party today on his 75th birthday anniversary.

Mack, who soon will start his fifty-fourth year in baseball, was presented with a fountain pen set by the Philadelphia chapter, Baseball Writers of America, at the party held in the A's dressing room at Shibe park.

INJURIES HIT HUSKIE SQUAD

Cruver Hurt in Blocking Drill; Not to Play.
Panthers O. K.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 23.—(AP)—The first pre-game had luck hit by the University of Washington football team today as the Huskies practiced for their tilt with the University of California in the Rose Bowl January 1.

Coach Jimmy Phelan, of the Huskies, announced in Santa Barbara, training site of the coast champions, that Al Cruver, 184-pound second-string fullback, would not play.

The half-sophomore, rated on a par with Ed Nowogroski, first string fullback, was hurt in a blocking drill yesterday. Examination revealed he cracked three ribs.

"I guess it's just one of those things," said Phelan.

Reports from the San Bernardino training camp of Pitt indicated all was well with the Panthers.

At the Huskies camp, Phelan said he would switch Merl Miller, sophomore reserve, to a pinch-hitting spot as understudy to Nowogroski. Miller scales around 180, and is in fair shape considering he has just recovered from a broken collar bone received when he was tackled by a California player in the Bruin-Husky game last October 10.

Phelan is pleased with the spirit of the squad. He is mainly concerned with improving its timing and pass defense, although Pitt came west unheralded as masters of the overhead style of play.

At San Bernardino Coach Jack Sutherland guided Pitt through a heavy practice session, which left the squad working under a hot sun, perspiring freely. Thus far the Panthers have escaped major injuries, their only ball-carrier, Sophomore Marshall Goldberg looking in the pink of condition.

Druid Hills Caddies Receive Gift Baskets

Druid Hills' 120 odd caddies will receive gift baskets at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the club house.

A large basket filled with candies, fruits, nuts, etc., and an envelope containing a $1 bill will be presented to each caddy, with Dr. Claude Hughes, the president, and Harry Stephens, the club professional, in charge of the program.

The presenters are to be made in appreciation for the good work and co-operation of the caddies during the year. Not a fight has been held during the past five months in the caddy house. Dr. Hughes said Wednesday, "and that shows a better spirit among the bag carriers."

Bob Herwig Will Make Rush Trip Back Home

The Reason: He's Ace Running Guard of Bear
Five; He's Iron Man Gridman.

By Jack Troy.

It is a rather fine thing Bob Herwig, great center of the California football team, will do immediately or maybe sooner following the game with Tech Saturday.

There will be no sightseeing trip for Herwig. He will not accompany his teammates on the scenic return trip, whose itinerary includes stops in Texas, Mexico City and Guadalajara.

Because—he is the ace running guard of Coach Nibs Price's Bear basketball team, and he will sacrifice pleasure to join another California team. He'll have no time off between seasons. He'll rush back to join the Bear basketballers.

No finer compliment could be paid an outstanding university by a young man who undoubtedly is a great athlete.

Herwig is a six-foot-four-inch giant, weighing 210, who probably does not look very small by comparison with a California Redwood. He has played six 60-minute games for the Bears this season.

NATURAL ATHLETE.

That he is a natural goes without saying, for he will leave the football team here, rush back home and take his regular place on the basketball team. He is a captain.

Four games will have been played before he reaches there, including Oregon, Ohio States (2), and Arizona. Prices now head coach of the basketball team, was incidentally, head coach of the football team when Tech played California in the Rose Bowl game of January 1, 1929.

I asked Roy Riegels, who played under Price, just what he thought of Herwig as a football center. Riegels, of course, was an all-coast center for two years and captain of the Golden Bears.

I asked him particularly about the speed of Herwig, who is nothing short of a giant. There is nothing short about his ability, either.

"YOU'LL SEE."

"You'll see," said Riegels in what seemed a sort of sinister fashion. "You'll see," he repeated.

"See what?" we responded in a manner intended to be naive, or maybe elusive.

"Well," Riegels elucidated, "he has a jutting square chin, a bull neck, pi-ano legs, a pair of wrestler's shoulders, a couple of hams for hands and the fight of a wounded water buffalo." "I took it he might somehow resemble the Chrysler building in an animated mood."

"As to basketball," said Riegels, "he was an All-American great last year. He is, in fact, a rather fine all-around athlete. You'll see."

And so it went on Saturday.

SIX FULL GAMES.

Herwig, who was named on several All-American teams this season, played six 60-minute games for the Bears. He served full time against St. Mary's, Oregon State, Washington, Washington State, Southern California and Oregon.

He played 509 minutes out of a possible 540. He could have played the

OTT, MEDWICK LEAD SLUGGERS

Giant Star Sets New Runs-Driven-In Mark.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—(AP)—To the New York Giants' Mel Ott and Joe Medwick, of the hard-hitting St. Louis Cardinals go the slugging and timely hitting honors in the National league for 1936.

The official averages, released today, show that Ott captured the slugging championship, but yielded all other individual honors to "Ducky Wukky," of the Gas House Gang.

The Giants' veteran outfielder pounded out a total of 314 bases in 534 trips to the plate for a .388 average. Medwick not only finished just 10 points behind Ott, but set the pace for total bases with 367 and drove in 138 runs to lead Mel by three.

Ott also set up a new league mark of driving in more than 100 runs for eight years.

Medwick's slugging percentage of .371 gave him fourth place in that department of play behind Ott, Dolph Camilli, of the Phillies, and his prize rookie mate, Johnny Mize. Ott was runner-up in total bases.

TEAM HONORS.

Paced by Medwick's big bat, the Cards won ten games in slugging with a percentage of .410, nine points better than the second-place Phillies. They also hit for a total of 2,270 bases and drove 733 runs across the plate, showing the way to the Pittsburgh Pirates in both divisions.

The Pittsburgh Pirates topped most other divisions under the league's "miscellaneous" heading, however. Arky Vaughan, their ace shortstop, led the league for the third straight year in drawing passes. He worked the pitchers for 118 free trips to first base. Lloyd Waner came close to the league record when he fanned only five times in 106 games.

In contrast, his teammate, Bill Brubaker, set the "strikeout king," with 96 strikeouts in 145 games.

Brubaker and Babe Herman, of Cincinnati, contributed a record-setting performance when they each hit into three doubles plays in one game. Herman did it against the Phillies in June and Brubaker against the Reds late in the season.

GOODMAN "BEANED."

Ival Goodman, of the Cincinnati Reds, and the hardest time getting away from "bean ball." He was hit nine times while at the plate. Joe Moore, of the Giants, and the Phillies' Lou Chiozza hit into the fewest double plays—three each. In contrast, Hal Lee, of the Bees, drove into 22 twin killings.

The club records disclosed that the Pittsburgh batsman walked the most times, 517; the Phillies fanned the most, 586; the Dodgers turned in the lowest total of hitting into double plays, 114; and the Bees, for the second straight year, hit into the most twin killings, 146.

STARTING TEAM FOR BEAR GAME IS ANNOUNCED

California Squad Arrives
Shortly After Noon;
To Work Later.

By Jack Troy.

Captain Mit FitzSimons can see part-time duty as a reserve, but Lawrence Hays, senior quarterback, is definitely lost for the California game Saturday afternoon at Grant field.

Coach W. A. Alexander, in response to a query, said: "Captain FitzSimons will be able to play some. I won't start him, however."

Asked about Hays, he did not say a word. He simply shook his head in a positive negative fashion.

Backfield Coach Bobby Dodd didn't see anything more than an outside chance for Tech. "We are too crippled," Dodd asserted.

CHANCE AND HAYS.

"We don't have Phil Chance, who has gone home for Christmas. Lawrence Hays can't play at all. And Captain FitzSimons, while he may play, can't possibly be nearly as effective as he was before the Georgia game. He was only able to take part in fire plays in the Georgia game. He has lost weight and can't run so well."

While Dodd was singing the blues, however, the intact members of the Jacket squad raced through a spirited drill. Finally, Coach Alexander called for the headgear—"just a couple more plays"—and held a session of live tackling. The backs and ends worked in one group, while Line Coach Mack Tharpe took the remainder of the linemen and put them through an offensive drill and also worked in some live tackling.

The Jackets will repair to Rose Bowl field early this morning and review the fundamentals. There will be some work done tackling dummies and charging machine.

SPIRITED WORK.

The players naturally are looking forward to the annual visit of the old man with the whiskers, but they are working spiritedly enough for the big game the day after Christmas.

Players of both teams will, of course, have a Christmas tree tonight at the Biltmore hotel. The Tech athletic association has arranged for all that. A well-known and rotund sports editor of an Atlanta newspaper has been commissioned by the original old man with the whiskers to act as Santa Claus on this occasion.

The Golden Bear squad of 23 players, coaches, trainers, et cetera, is scheduled to arrive at 12:15 today. A short workout will be held later in the afternoon at Grant field.

Tech's starting lineup was revealed yesterday. The backfield will include Fletcher Sims, quarterback; Duke Konekman and Red Collins, halfbacks, and Harry Appleby, fullback.

The line embraces Bill Jordan and Ed Jones ends; Charley Preston and Glenn Cushing, tackles; Jack Nixon and Allen Wilcox, guards, and Jack Chivington, center.

ONE TACKLE RESERVE.

Tech really has only one experienced tackle reserve. That's Bud Lindsey, senior. Mack Furlow and Red Roberts also are in reserve.

With a tackle fixed at center and a doubtful. That is as to the length of service he can see, Tech is not so well fixed at the guards, either.

Only after the game starts up as a main-sized guard, so to speak, Eddie Carmack and J. L. Brooks are small guards.

On the other hand, Carmack is just about as tough and tricky as any big guard. He has a way of getting through to stop the ball carrier.

Tech's well fixed at center and at the ends. Jim Morgan and George Smith are two whopping big wingmen Tech can toss in there.

And the backfield reserves are not limited. Except for quarterbacks, Sims is the only quarterback left. Jimmy Moore could run the team, but the players do not invest in Moore the confidence they hold in Sims.

However, Moore, Scrappy Edwards, Ernest Sharpe, Junior Anderson, Dick (Rough House) Beard and Bruce Murphy can be counted upon in a pinch.

The Bears will be favorites, maybe not heavy favorites, but anyway the ruling favorite to win. Which is as it should be. Coach Stubby Allison's Bears came with a rush in November. The Jackets, on the other hand, find it a tall task.

A revised offense, packing more color and perhaps more punch and a good deal of versatility, will show the Jackets facing something they haven't seen heretofore this season.

Then, too, California's offense, which leans to power but goes razzle-dazzle on the slightest provocation, will make quite a contest of it.

CHANCE TO EVEN SERIES.

The game represents a chance for Tech to even the series, although the Golden Bears are a top-heavy choice to win.

It will be the fourth time the Bears and Jackets have met. Tech won the first game, the famous Rose Bowl game of 1929. The score was 8 to 7. Resumption of relations in a two-game series, 1935 and 1932, was the Bears winning each time, 19 to 6 here, and 27 to 7 at Berkeley.

A Tech victory Saturday would make it two and two. But, on the other hand, a California triumph would make it three in a row. And that, amigoes, is what the Yellow Jackets hope to prevent.

Roosevelt Horse Fails at Jumping

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—John Roosevelt, riding high in the White House "string," failed to place in a horse show at the Fort Myer army post last night when his mount, a bay gelding named "Roosevelt," failed to clear a jump.

The horse, Badger, had spilled the President's son in a practice session, but young Roosevelt kept firmly in his saddle during the meet.

TARZAN'S QUEST No. 4

Beneath the giant hops of the big plane, civilization receded, to be replaced by the forbidding jungles of the Dark Continent. "Tomorrow we'll be in Nairobi," said Lady Jane Greystone; "I cabled my husband to meet me there. He may be late to help you."

"Oh, that would be thrilling," bubbled the middle-aged Princess Storov, nee Kitty Kraus. Then she turned to her youthful, darkly handsome husband. "You see! Lady Jane says Tarzan will help us find those savages who know the secret of keeping young!"

Thus fate spun another thread that linked the roving plane to Tarzan's jungle march, for now Muir was relating in awed tones: "We shall find the Kavuru powerful enemies, Bwana. Some say they are forever young and strong—men who never die!"

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

"This whole expedition's silly!" Prince Storov said sullenly; "I'm convinced that ruffian American pilot means to land somewhere, slit our throats, and decamp with our funds. Secret of youth! Huh! If we discover any secret, it will be the secret of death!"

EX-SENATOR S. D. FESS,

NOTED G. O. P. LEADER,

IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

New Deal foe succumbs to Heart Attack in Midst of Yule Preparations.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—

Former Senator Simon D. Fess, of

Ohio, long a prominent Republican, died of a heart attack today in the midst of making Christmas preparation.

He arrived from Cleveland a few minutes earlier to spend the holidays with his son, Charles S. Fess.

The former senator, 75, a New Deal foe defeated for re-election in 1934.

He was jovial and in apparent good health a moment before the attack.

Mrs. Margaret L. Welsh, a secretary, was with him when he died. He collapsed while seated on a bed in his room telephoning a former secretary.

FUNERAL SERVICES.

Charles Fess' funeral services were arranged tentatively for Saturday at Yellow Springs, Ohio, the former senator's home. Survivors include two other sons, Lehr Fess, a representative, and five grandchildren. Mrs. Fess died in 1926.

Scholarly and mild appearing, Fess had been a vigorous critic of Roosevelt measures.

"There was no compromise with the New Deal," he said a little less than a year ago in discussing possible

Republican presidential candidates.

"The New Deal is a philosophy and not a policy and the next campaign will be fought between the New Dealers and the anti-New Dealers."

First a Teacher.

Teaching was Fess' first occupation. He served as president of An-tioc College, at Yellow Springs, for six years before entering politics. He wrote a number of books and at the time of his death had been working on a history of the two-party system in the United States.

His passing brought expressions of grief alike from political friends and enemies.

Senator Vie Donahoe, Ohio Democrat who defeated him, said Fess

"gave his best in every undertaking and followed the right path to the obtain. He was my friend and I always spoke of him as a grand old man."

"I congratulate you upon the service rendered to your country and wish for your health, happiness and peace in the remaining years of your life which I hope will be many."
